

The ABA's associated newspaper register is updated biannually, or as required. The ABA uses the register to help it monitor compliance with the cross-media provisions of the Act.

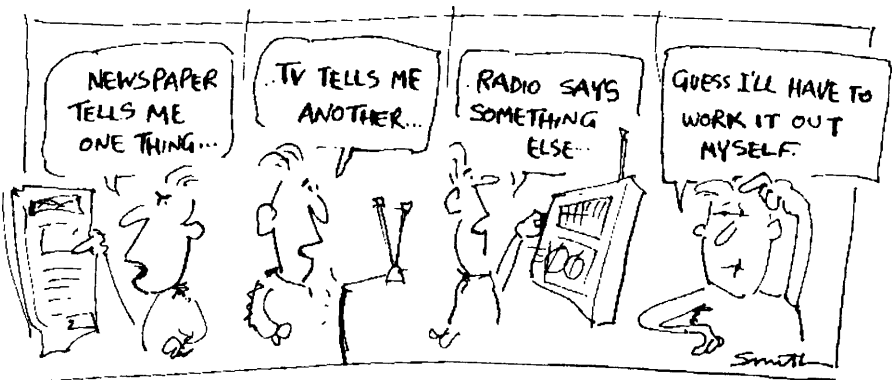

Associated newspaper register

The Associated Newspaper Register assists the ABA in monitoring compliance with the cross-media provisions of the Act.

Under the Act, a person must not be in a position to exercise control of both a commercial television licence and a commercial radio licence which have the same licence area. Similarly, a person must not be in a position to exercise control of a commercial television licence, or a commercial radio licence, and a newspaper associated with the licence area of such a licence.

The Associated Newspaper Register is updated biannually, or as required.

The Broadcasting Services Act 1992 (the Act) defines the term newspaper at section.6:

Newspaper means a newspaper that is in the English language and is published on at least four days in each week, but does not include a publication if less than 50 per cent of its circulation is by way of sale.

Section 59(3) provides:

If the ABA is satisfied that at least 50 per cent of the circulation of a newspaper is within the licence area of a commercial television broadcasting licence or a commercial radio broadcasting licence, the ABA is to enter the name of the newspaper in the Register in relation to that licence area.
