

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Barbara

Congratulations on your first year of publishing Australian Law Librarian. The South Australian Committee has done a marvellous job keeping the journal going despite the need to maintain a high level of work in your own libraries. It is not easy to juggle the different demands and as deadlines approach the stress levels rise. The ACT Committee knows that too well, as no doubt do the Victorians!

The last issue for 1996 in particular was a "bumper" issue which must have been very demanding on the editorial staff. My thanks for keeping Australian Law Librarian going so well and I am sure I speak for all law librarians in saying how much we appreciate your hard work.

Best wishes

Jacqueline Elliott

Dear Editor

Re: Access to AGIS

In the Australian Law Librarian December 1996 David Grainger, Director of SCALE, Attorney-General's Department announced that SCALE had ceased to be accessible from the departments mainframe as of December 1996 and is now available through the AGPS Server on the Internet.

AGIS however is not available on the AGPS server with the other SCALE databases.

AGIS is produced by the Lionel Murphy Library of the Attorney-General's Department and is not, and has never been, a free public access database. AGIS is available online through OZLINE, KIWINET and LEXIS, all updated monthly. AGIS is also available on the AUSTROM CD-ROM published 4 times a year and a newly published CD-ROM AUSTlaw, published 10 times a year.

AGIS is available as a hard copy subscription item fortnightly through AGPS. The hard copy is an excellent tool for updating both CD-ROM products.

For details on how to access AGIS through any of the above mentioned sources please contact the AGIS Section of the Attorney-General's Department.
