CCH AUSTRALIA Limited has announced the appointment of a new Managing Director. Judith Sperling, a solicitor who has been with CCH for over twenty years, began her new role in September. She succeeds Richard Honor, who has gone to guide and direct the operations of CCH in Canada, Mexico, the United Kingdom, Europe, Asia, South America, Africa and the Pacific Rim for the CCH parent company in Chicago. These moves are part of a global plan for the CCH worldwide group to increase its international product range, adopting new technologies and business approaches internally to lower costs and further improve its service.

Susan Ainsworth, ALIA's Industrial Officer, left us on 27 October to take up a position with a Trade Union in Canberra. Susie is following her own advice, continuing to improve her qualifications by broadening her experience and pursuing her law degree. Good luck for the future!

Ian McCallum has just been appointed Manager, Commonwealth Government Services, for the Ferntree Computer Corporation, based in Canberra. His responsibilities will include expanding the company's client base and account management of all of Ferntree's services in the Federal arena.

The Ray Choate RAISS Biennial Travelling Scholarship has been awarded to Rosemary Cotter of the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology Central Library. Rosemary's interest is both in training staff who are new to the reference desk, and in ongoing training for more experienced librarians. She plans to collect details of current training programs and of philosophies of desk service and reference policies in Australian academic libraries. She will then develop a model for the training of reference staff and explore any gaps between perceived training needs and current training programs.

Brian Howes has opened a second-hand book shop in Nuriootpa, where he will operate as Barossa Vintage Books. He will continue to run Maggie Books from Angaston, where his program of publishing guides and directories for the rare book trade progresses.

Ed Willis has been appointed Deputy University Librarian in the Curtin University Library & Information Service. Ed is currently the bibliographic Services Librarian at the Barr Smith Library, University of Adelaide. He will take up his new appointment on 4 January next year.

Jackie Patrick has replaced Rob Brian as the Law Librarian at the University of NSW. Jackie has a Bachelor of Library Science degree (Majoring in Law), a Diploma in Advanced Library Studies from Western Australia and is currently studying for her Masters of Librarianship at UNSW. Her prior experience includes COBOL programming and Librarianship in the Treasury, Corrective Services and a major law firm.

In inCite 9 we mentioned that Susan Thompson has been selected to participate in the 1992/93 Japan Foundation Japanese Language Study Program for Librarians in Urawa, Saitama, Japan. We have just learned that Mary McDonell, Company Information Librarian at the Australian Graduate School of Management Library, has also been selected for this program. Mary had been studying Japanese as a personal interest. ■
