

Feasibility study underway

A feasibility study for the development of CILLA: The Co-ordinated Interlibrary Loan Administration Project is now underway. Judith Greenaway, document delivery librarian at Monash University has been seconded to the project and will complete the study by February next year.

The project was first proposed by Judith Greenaway, Geoff Payne (CAVAL Ltd) and Neil McLean (Macquarie University) and arose out of the need to provide a local interlibrary loan and document delivery administration system which would handle the complex interlending management environment inherent in all such operations.

The project will be undertaken in close association with the National Document and Information Service team and the Joint Electronic Document Delivery Software project. This close association with other major Australian developments is to ensure that all systems will inter-operate efficiently. Mary Jackson, Access and Delivery Services Consultant, Association of Research Libraries will act as external adviser to the project.

The feasibility study has been funded by a grant from the AVCC's National Priority (Reserve) Fund, Improved Information Infrastructure Program 2(a), supplemented by additional funds from the Australian Council of Libraries and Information Services, with administrative support provided by CAVAL Ltd.

A world wide web home page providing a full description of the project and progress reports will be mounted as a link from the CAVAL home page very soon. All inquiries may be forwarded to: Judith Greenaway, CILLA Project Manager, e-mail: judgreen@lib.monash.edu.au, telephone: 03 9459 2722, or fax: 03 9459 2733. ■

Recognition of leadership

Sue Carpenter, National Sport Information Centre

Nerida Clarke, director of information services at the Australian Sports Commission has been elected to the presidency of the International Association for Sports Information — the world peak body for sport information professionals. The Association has 119 members in sixty countries, representing all regions of the world.

The Association is a

Category A Committee of UNESCO, it has a membership on the Board of the International Council of Sport Science and Physical Education and since 1994 has been officially recognised by the International Olympic Committee.

In taking on the presidency Nerida will lead the organisation into the next century when technology will play an increasing role in the collection and dissemination of sporting information. This in itself will present many challenges particularly in ensuring that there is equity of access to sporting information throughout the world.

Nerida's election is a recognition of the leadership that Australia has shown in the development of world class information systems and services for sport. ■
